SITE DEVELOPMENT

The Board of Trustees believes that site selections and development should start with the premise that the school is an integral and inseparable part of the total area community. Since the school is a community institution, it should reflect this relationship physically as well as ideologically.

The manner and extent to which a site serves a school district's educational needs should be considered as only one aspect of its adequacy. It should also be appraised with respect to its potential for contributing to the scope and depth of many other community functions.
