

The Challenge

Across schools nationwide, educators are committed to equipping students with the writing skills necessary for academic success, but they face immense challenges in providing calibrated, timely, high-quality feedback at scale. Teachers strive to balance instruction, assessment, and feedback, yet the traditional grading process can be time-consuming and overly subjective. The time burden to provide the feedback that students need leads to burnout, and school leaders often lack the data they need to understand where grading and feedback is inconsistent.

Partnership Vision

We are excited to propose a formal partnership with Meridian Community Schools that will help address these challenges, and enable teachers to embed more writing and written feedback into their curriculum. We seek to provide broad access to EnlightenAI so we can enable Meridian Community Schools educators to provide consistent, high-quality, and personalized writing feedback to their students on a daily basis in a way that decreases teacher burnout.

This partnership will also ensure that Meridian Community Schools leaders have the ability to train and distribute calibrated AI grading models confidently, ensuring writing assessment is accurate, consistent, and reliable, not only within individual schools and regions but across the entire network.

Finally, Meridian Community Schools leaders will have access to data-driven insights and trends across its network, empowering them to identify, study, and amplify best practices. Teachers will be able to meet their own high expectations without subjecting themselves to burnout and overwork. Ultimately, this initiative is about students; ensuring that every learner consistently receives specific, actionable, and timely feedback on their written work. This will not only help them develop mastery in literacy, but also build confidence in their voice as writers and thinkers.

We're excited to propose this partnership and support your work!
